Turin, September 28.

ON the 26th Instant, the King and the Prince Royal returned to this City from visiting several Places on our Frontiers; and To-morrow they set out from hence, designing to make a Tour to La Venerie, and will go afterwards to Rivoli. It is not yet certain when the Court will repair to La Venerie, to make any considerable Stay there. The Count de Mallaube, who has been to make a Tour in Savoy, is at present obliged to perform Quarantain on our Frontiers before he can have Admittance in this City.

Genoa, Oct. 4. Sig. Aldobrandini, who goes to Spain in Quality of the Pope's Nuncio, is arrived here; but he is not to take on him that Character until he has effected an Accommodation between the Courts of Rome and Madrid; which seems already to be in good Forwardness, through the Interposition of the Duke of Parma. He was magnificently treated Yesterday by M. de Chavigny, Envoy of France, and designs to leave this Place about eight or ten Days hence. We are assured that the Affair relating to the Remainder of the Contributions which the Duke of Parma is to pay to the Emperour, is lately terminated to the Satisfaction of both Parties.

Munich, Oct. 12. This Day being the Feast of St. Maximilian, whose Name our Elector bears, the Court appeared very Numerous and more splendid than ever; and his Electoral Highness has thereupon received the Compliments of all Persons without Distinction, which has gained him the Heart and Affection not only of his own Subjects, but also from all the Strangers who are arrived here from many Places at 30 Leagues distance. The Electoral Prince, to celebrate this Feast with the greater Magnificence, caused a fine Opera to be performed; and besides the famous Musicians belonging to this Court, his Highness has caused the celebrated Sig. Bernachi and two others to come from Italy, whose Voices have perfectly answered the Reputation they have acquired in all Places where they have performed. The Musick of this Opera was composed by the celebrated M. Torry, Counsellour, and Master of his Electoral Highness's Chapel, so well known by many excellent Compositions which are much admired by the Publick. The Decorations were varied almost in every Scene; and it may be spoke with Justice, that neither in Italy, nor in France, has there ever been seen till now any thing of this kind more Magnificent, better contrived, or better executed.

London, October 20.

On Tuesday Night late came in a Male from France, with the following Advices.

Paris, Oct. 16. Letters from Alicant of the 8th Instant say, that the Commandant of that Place had received Orders from Court for getting ready all the Transport-Ships in that Port, to the Number of 74: having 4000 Men on board, with Abundance of Stores and Provisions: That all these Ships sailed the same Day, but it was not known what Course they were to take, because they were not to open their Orders till they were got to a certain Latitude at Sea: That an Express arrived there at the same time, upon which Orders were given to the Captains of Frigates, Gallies, and Fireships to get ready in all haste in order to sail forthwith and join the Convoy: That 14 Transport-Ships had arrived there on the 6th Instant, under the Convoy of two Frigates from Cadiz, which disembarked several Bales of Cloathing, and Chests of new Arms for the Troops which lately arrived there: Those Transports had likewise on board a great Number of Bales, Barrils of Powder, 600 Bombs, 4000 Granadoes, 34 Pieces of Cannon, and 12 Mortars. They write from Gironne on the 9th Instant, that Advices from Saragosa give an Account, that pursuant to Orders from Court they had begun to make a Draught of the Soldiers and Strangers among the Troops which came lately from Sicily, and that the draughted Men were to rendezous at Balbarra and Fraga; that the new Levies were carried on successfully in all the Province, as well for recruiting the old Regiments as to compleat the 500 Men which the Governours are obliged to furnish before the end of this Month, by which 'tis conjectured, that these new Levies are designed for the Expedition to Africa. Letters from Martigues, a small Town situated between Aix, Avignon, and Marseilles, of the 12th Instant say, that the Contagion begins to make great Havock at Aix; Marseilles is utterly ruined, above 80000 of its Inhabitants are dead and Abundance dye every Day; a more malignant Pestilence was never known, it lays every thing waste; the Religious in the Monasteries of all Orders have perished by it; not one Capuchin or Ricolet is left alive; all the Churches are shut up, and the Streets are covered with dead Carcasses, 27 Carts which are continually employed, not being sufficient to carry them off, and about 30 Master-Surgeons and 4 Physicians are dead amongst the rest. The Plague has infected 35 Places in Provence. Martigues, St. Chamas, and some other Villages and Boroughs are yet free from it, and the King has sent thither two Battallions of Miquelets to keep Guard there, and hinder all Communication by Land and Sea with those Places. M. de Maisonne, who belonged to the Household of the late Dutchess of Berry, is appointed to attend the Turkish Ambassadour who is newly arrived at Toulon, and is to set out next Week to receive him and to defray his Expences thither. M. de Ferial, who was formerly Ambassadour at Constantinople for 14 Years together, is to return thither in the same Quality, to relieve the Marquess de Bonac.

Paris, Oct. 26. The Duke of Grammont, Knight of the Order of the Holy Ghost, and of the Golden Fleece, and Governour of Navarra and died here the Night before last. Several extraordinary Councils of the King have been held within these few Days; and assured that an Accommodation is transacting between the Court and the Parliament, which 'tis thought will return hither at Martinmas, and consent to the Registration of the King's Letters Patents in relation to the Pope's Constitution. An Express was sent Yesterday to the Cardinal de Rohan, to hasten his Return from his Diocese, in order to take Possession of the Post of President of the new Council of Conscience, and assist at some Consultations which are to be held upon the Affairs of Religion, and the Nomination of the vacant Benefices, amongst which there are 11 Bishopricks, and about 60 Abbeyes. The Publick is in great Expectation of new Regulations concerning the Finances, and that the Bank Notes will be allowed to be current the whole Month of November; upon which Supposition, the Discount upon them diminished from near 80 per Cent to about 70. The Actions of the India Company rose at the same time from 4500, to 5500. 'Tis said the Capital of the Fund upon the Town house will be reduced to one half, but in order to make the Proprietors Amends, they will be allowed 3 per Cent instead of 2 and a half. An Arrêt has lately been published, containing several Regulations with respect to the contagious Distemper in Provence. There is a Report spread of some Commotions in Languedoc and the Sevensnes. Several Protestants who are accused of being concerned in the late Disturbances in Poitou, have been condemned, and some of them executed on that Account, though Letters from thence assure, that all their Crime consisted in assembling together for divine Service.
